Fernando Montaña performed the closing Gallardo tango solo.

Hanover Grange, The Tryall Club villa owned by Theresa and Andrew Roberts, was the midweek venue for a charitable ballet recital.

The surfaces of Hanover Grange were decorated with floral flourishes.

A minimal outdoor lighting plan ensured that atmosphere was maintained.

Shawn Beck chandeliers floated above the cocktail-hour mingle and the evening's performances.
